

International Development

Summer Course

FUNDAÇÃO
CALOUSTE GULBENKIAN

15-17 june 2021
3rd edition

15th June

Rethinking Development Cooperation for the Post-pandemic World

Will the pandemic mark a turning point in global dynamics and development policies or will it merely reinforce the geopolitical trends of the past decade? The goal here is to discuss whether there is an open door for reforming international systems and targeting the most pressing current challenges, such as climate change and inequalities. It would be important to reflect on a holistic approach, particularly looking at the impact of these trends on the most vulnerable societies, especially the Covid-19 effect and the humanitarian-development-peace nexus.

Maria Hermínia Cabral, Director of the Gulbenkian Partnerships for Development Program

Maria Hermínia Cabral is graduated in Economics from the University of Porto (1985) and holds a Master's Degree in Cooperation and International Development from ISEG - the Lisbon School of Economics and Management (1997) alongside an extensive experience in regional and international development policies, programs and projects. She started her professional career in the North Region Coordination Commission in 1985, having subsequently worked in several Ministries - Agriculture and Fisheries, Environment, Regional Planning and Development, Foreign Affairs and Health - and in the Assembly of the Republic. At the beginning of her career, she lectured at the University of Minho and at the Faculty of Economics of the University of Porto, and also worked in the private sector in the 1996-1997 period. She has been Director of the Gulbenkian Program Partnerships for Development since 2012, after having held the positions of deputy director of the Health and Human Development Service and coordinator of the Gulbenkian Environment Program and the Advanced Medical Training Program.

Ana Patrícia Fonseca, President of the Portuguese NGDO Platform

Ana Patrícia Fonseca, graduated in Sociology and, for the last 12 years, has served as the Coordinator of the Development Education, Social Advocacy and Communication Department at FEC, where she is responsible for managing, operationalizing, monitoring and evaluating projects and advocacy initiatives together with national and European policy makers within the framework of the 2030 Agenda, Human Rights, Global Citizenship and Policy Coherence for Development. She also develops DEAR/GCE programs, aimed at different teaching cycles, and coordinates public interest communication campaigns. She strives to foster reflection on shared humanity and seeks to ensure the visibility of realities of social and territorial exclusion, bringing citizens and policy makers together and linking local agents with national and international decision makers. She has participated in different national and international forums within the scope of bringing the peripheries into the center of dialogue and decision making and to take the centers to the most peripheral realities in ongoing efforts for social justice and the common good.

Luis Mah, Research Fellow at CEsa - Center for African and Development Studies at ISEG-Lisbon School of Economics and Management/University of Lisbon

Luis Mah is a Research Fellow at CEsa - Center for African and Development Studies at ISEG - the Lisbon School of Economics and Management/University of Lisbon. He lectures on the MA in International Development and Cooperation as well as on the PhD in Development Studies at ISEG. He holds a PhD in Development Studies from the London School of Economics (London, 2004).

Cristina Peres, Expresso Cristina Peres was born in Lisbon and has been a journalist since 1987. She has been an editor at Expresso since 1992. The editor of Culture and a critic of Performing Arts until 2005, she coordinated the International Policy section from then until 2017. She covers international news across the various Expresso platforms and, since September 2020, has produced the podcast dedicated to African issues "Africa Now". She has a degree in Philosophy from the Faculty of Social and Human Sciences, Nova University of Lisbon.

Michele Cervone D'Urso, Head of Development Cooperation Coordination, European External Action Service Michele Cervone D'Urso holds a degree in economics and international relations from St Andrews University (Scotland) and is currently Head of Development Cooperation Coordination at the European External Action Service. Among his previous leading positions, he served as Ambassador to Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, Kuwait, Oman and Qatar, Special Envoy for Somalia and Ambassador to Yemen.

Sara Pantuliano, Chief Executive, ODI Sara Pantuliano is Chief Executive at ODI. She is a member of the UN Secretary-General's Sixth Advisory Group of the UN Peacebuilding Fund and of UNFPA's ICPD25 High-Level Commission. She also serves on the High-Level Group on Humanitarian Resilience and Investing, the Digital Currency Governance Consortium Steering Committee and the Global Future Council on the New Agenda for Fragility and Resilience of the World Economic Forum (WEF). Sara is a Managing Editor of Disasters, a Trustee of The New Humanitarian, and Vice-Chair of the Board of Muslim Aid. She previously led a high-profile UN response in Sudan's Nuba Mountains, acted as an observer at the IGAD Sudan peace process and lectured at the University of Dar es Salaam. She holds a PhD in Politics and International Studies and has written extensively on conflict and humanitarian affairs.

Jonathan Glennie, Author of The Future of Aid, Global Public Investment Jonathan Glennie is a writer, researcher, campaigner and consultant on sustainable development, inequality and poverty. His work looks in particular at the changing nature of international cooperation as the dominant paradigms and global economic relationships evolve. He has held senior positions in several international organisations, including Ipsos, Save the Children, ODI and Christian Aid and helped set up The Guardian's Global Development website, for which he was a regular columnist. As a consultant, he has worked with governments, international agencies and civil society organisations as they renew their strategies for a new era. His latest book, The Future of Aid: Global Public Investment, was published by Routledge in November 2020. He lives with his family in Colombia.

Building Genuine and Legitimate Partnerships

Understanding how rapid and significant changes in the global arena are reshaping international relations and how emerging global players are questioning traditional neo-colonial attitudes towards developing countries. It is therefore important to reflect on and highlight the issue of power and power imbalances within partnerships. Looking particularly at the EU-Africa Partnership, and the termination of the Cotonou Agreement, the EU has the opportunity to redefine the foundations of its partnership and make this a strategic example for ensuring prosperous, peaceful and sustainable futures for all participants. This shall also focus on the scope for civil society developing transformational partnerships, particularly with the private for-profit sector.

Bárbara Reis, Público

Bárbara Reis holds a degree in Communication Sciences from Nova University of Lisbon and has been a journalist since 1989. She was part of the original Público newspaper founding team and a New York Times correspondent between 1995 and 2000. Between 2000 and 2002, she worked for the UN peacekeeping mission in East Timor as a spokesman for UNTAET. At Público, she was editor of the Culture section, of the P2 section, executive director and newspaper director. Today, she is the main editor of Público. She lectures Opinion Texts Writing at IPPS-ISCTE-UL and has authored two books (The Negotiator - Diplomatic Revelations about Timor-Leste, 1997-1999, Don Quixote, 2019, and A Normal Day in the Digital Era - Ethics, Values and Politics, Francisco Manuel dos Santos Foundation, 2020).

Carlos Zorrinho, the European Parliamentary Delegation to the ACP-EU Joint Parliamentary Assembly

Carlos Zorrinho has been a Member of the European Parliament (S&D) since 2014, where he is currently a member of the Committee on Industry, Research and Energy, Head of the Portuguese Delegation of Socialists & Democrats to the European Parliament and Chair of the Delegation to the ACP-EU Joint Parliamentary Assembly. He previously served as Vice-Chair of the Delegation for External Relations of the European Parliament to Brazil. He holds a Master's Degree in Business Administration and a PhD in Information Management from the University of Évora, Portugal.

Paul Horrocks, Head of Unit for Private Finance for Sustainable Development at the OECD

Paul Horrocks is Head of the Private Finance for Sustainable Development Unit at the OECD Development Co-operation Directorate. Paul corre-

spondingly works on a number of initiatives aiming at encouraging greater private sector investment in developing countries, in particular focusing on the policies and approaches governments may adopt to ensure the alignment and impact of their activities.

Prior to this, Paul was a Senior Executive of the Australian Federal Treasury Fiscal Group, working on the domestic infrastructure market but also providing policy advice during Australia's G20 presidency on international policy challenges. Paul has over a decade of senior leadership at the European Institutions in Brussels, having worked on initiatives such as the deepening of European capital markets in response to the 2008 financial crisis.

Paul holds a degree from the University of Wales, and a Master's Degree from the University of Liverpool as well as an Executive MBA from Vlerick Business School in Belgium.

Nana Asante-wa Afadzinu, Executive Director, West Africa Civil Society Institute Nana Afadzinu, an Executive Director of the West Africa

Civil Society Institute (WACSI), has worked within the civil society sector for the past 24 years. She is a passionate advocate for sustainable development in Africa through the full participation of an effective, efficient, influential and sustainable civil society. Her passion for leading change and challenging the status quo on the continent recently landed her a place on the Avance Media 2020 100 Most Influential African Women List. She is a lawyer by profession and has worked in areas of governance, human rights, philanthropy and capacity development with several mission-oriented organisations in Africa. These include the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights, the Open Society Initiative for West Africa (OSIWA) and IBIS West Africa, among others. She currently serves on the Boards of OXFAM GB and the Resource Alliance.

16th June

The Liberal Globalization Paradigm in Perspective: Democracy and Economy

To discuss the implications of the global governance model based on a connection between economic liberalization and democracy that has been dominant since the end of the cold war.

To understand the role of civil society within the neoliberal economic system, critically reflecting on its implications and proposing alternative ways that are aligned with their traditional concerns – the principle of leave no one behind, human rights-based approaches, etcetera.

Paulo Agostinho, Lusa News Agency Paulo Agostinho is the Editor of Lusophony, Africa and Communities at the Lusa News Agency, where he was previously editor of the International and Country Section. As such, he manages the work of the agency's teams of journalists in Angola, Brazil, Cape Verde, Guinea Bissau, Macau, Mozambique, Sao Tome and Principe and East Timor and correspondents in countries with significant Portuguese-speaking communities. He has simultaneously lectured at the Polytechnic Institute of Leiria for the last two decades and is currently completing a doctoral degree.

João Rodrigues, Centre of Social Studies, University of Coimbra João Rodrigues is an Assistant Professor at the Faculty of Economics of the University of Coimbra and Researcher at the Center for Social Studies. With a doctorate from the University of Manchester, his research has focused on themes of political economy, from the history of neoliberalism to the financialization of capitalism in Portugal. He is the author of several publications in these areas, including academic journals such as the Cambridge Journal of Economics or the Review of International Political Economy. He is also co-author of the political economy blog Ladrões de Bicicletas and a member of the Editorial Board of Le Monde diplomatique - Portuguese edition.

Idayat Hassan, Director of the Centre for Democracy and Development Idayat Hassan is Director of the Centre for Democracy and Development (CDD), an Abuja-based policy advocacy and research organization focusing on deepening democracy and development in West Africa. Idayat is a lawyer and has held fellowships in universities across Europe and the United States. Her interests span democracy, peace and security, transitional justice, and ICT4D in West Africa. Idayat frequently appears in international and local media as an expert on Nigeria/ West Africa and is regularly quoted in the BBC, CCTV, RFI, VOA, Bloomberg, the Washington Post, the Financial Times, the Economist, the Guardian, and DW. As the Director of CDD, she oversaw CDD's rise from being unranked in 2013 to ranked 11th out of 94 think tanks in sub-Saharan Africa in 2020, according to the University of Pennsylvania's Global Go To Think Tank Index. Idayat has strengthened CDD's position as a civic tech leader with a portfolio of projects, including analyses of the nexus between social media platforms, election processes, and electoral outcomes—using an app to identify electoral fraud and analyzing the use of personal data in political campaigning in Nigeria. Idayat has consistently provided thoughtful leadership at different phases of Boko Haram's development. She was involved with Operation Safe Corridor (OSC) from its inception, providing foundational ideas and operational advice. She provided conceptual clarity on the Boko Haram phenomenon during its heyday, presenting analyses of the group's motives and methods at conferences in Nigeria and internationally.

Philani Mthembu, Executive Director at the Institute for Global Dialogue

Dr. Philani Mthembu is Executive Director at the Institute for Global Dialogue, an independent foreign policy think tank based in Tshwane (Pretoria), South Africa. Prior to joining the IGD, he pursued a joint doctoral programme (Dr. rer. pol.) between the Graduate School of Global Politics, Freie Universität Berlin (Germany), and the School of International Studies at Renmin University, Beijing (China). The focus of his dissertation was on the rise of emerging powers as sources of development cooperation in Africa, for which he was awarded Magna Cum Laude. He co-founded the Berlin Forum on Global Politics (BFoGP), a non-profit organisation dedicated to the promotion of academic, expert and public understanding of global politics. While completing his Masters in International Relations at the University of the Witwatersrand, Johannesburg, he headed the Academic Development Programme for first-year students and was elected as the first independent candidate to the Student Representative Council (SRC). His recent publications include a single authored book titled 'China and India's Development Cooperation in Africa: The Rise of Southern Powers', a co-edited book titled 'From MDGs to Sustainable Development Goals: The Travails of International Development', a co-edited book titled 'Africa and the World: Navigating Shifting Geopolitics', and a co-edited book titled 'Africa-China Cooperation: Towards an African Policy on China?'

Financing for Development: New Trends in a Multiplex World

Greater complexity in decision making is largely linked to the emergence of more complex financing modalities. To understand new modalities and sources of financing, it is important to look at the basic assumptions behind blending instruments and how they are shaping the development sector. This also takes into consideration the challenges that sovereign debt poses for economic development, social cohesion and human rights; and new trends related with tax justice.

Paulo Ferreira, Observador Paulo Ferreira is a journalist who was formerly a member of the editorial boards of Diário Económico, Jornal de Negócios and Público, and Director of Information at RTP. In 2014, with two colleagues, he founded True Stories, a storytelling agency and creation of multimedia formats. He maintains a regular presence across various media as a commentator in Observer, SAPO 24 and TVI and in addition to lecturing in Political Communication at ISCSP.

Bruno Wenn, Chairman, European Development Finance Institutions ASBL Bruno Wenn was Chairman of the Management Board of DEG, a subsidiary of KfW Bankengruppe, from October 2009 until his retirement in June 2018. Prior to that, he had worked for KfW Bankengruppe in various management positions ever since 1982. In his last position, he was responsible for the Regional Division of Sub-Saharan Africa. After graduating with a degree in economics from the University of Bonn in 1981 and completing a post graduate training programme in development economics from the German Development Institute, Berlin in 1981/1982, Bruno Wenn is an Honorary Member of the German Africa Business Association, Hamburg/Berlin, Member of the Board of Trustees of the German Africa Foundation, Berlin. Member of the Advisory Board of the Tony Elumelu Foundation, Lagos, Member of the Board of Trustees of the Welthungerhilfe, Bonn, Member of the Strategic Advisors Group to the Compliance Advisor Ombudsman (CAO) of IFC/MIGA, Washington and a Board Member of various cultural associations in Cologne.

Jason Rosario Braganza, Executive Director, African Forum and Network on Debt and Development (AFRODAD) Jason Rosario Braganza is a Kenyan Economist with over ten years experience working on international development in Africa. Jason has focused his work over the past decade on trade and regional integration; finance for development and tax; illicit financial flows and domestic resource mobilisation; and poverty and inequality. Jason is the Executive Director at The African Forum and Network on Debt and Development (AFRODAD). He was the Co-Head and Programme Director of Tax at the International Lawyers Project (ILP), a leading legal pro-bono tax reform group. Prior to joining ILP, Jason served as the Deputy Executive Director and Head of Research at Tax Justice Network Africa (TJNA) where he led their research and advocacy work on illicit financial flows and tax justice at the continental and global level. Jason has previously worked as a Senior Analyst at [devinit.org]Development Initiatives - Africa Hub; and as an Economist for the Ministry of East African Community in Kenya. Jason holds a Master's Degree in Development Economics from the University of Sussex (UK), and an Undergraduate Degree in Economics from the School of Oriental and African Studies (SOAS), University of London.

Elsa de Morais Sarmento, Researcher at Nova Business School of Management and Economics Elsa de Morais Sarmento is an applied economist and professional appraiser with experience in applied research, international development, monitoring and impact assessment. She is the Principal Evaluation Director of the Independent Development Evaluation (IDEV) of the African Development Bank and a professor at the University of Aveiro (Portugal). Previously, she worked for international organizations (the World Bank, the United Nations (UNDP, WIPO), the European Commission, the Organization of Eastern Caribbean States, and with the OECD and the IMF).

She has extensive international experience, having worked in more than 50 countries, 40 of which with direct field experience. She has experience with high level interactions and political dialogues, having been appointed to various positions as Director of the Studies Office of the Portuguese Ministry of Economics, and having served as a policy advisor at the House of Commons (UK) for various African governments and international research project activities. She has taught for more than a decade at various academic institutions, including the Nova School of Business and Economics, and worked as a researcher at CEP (LSE), at the European Parliament, at the Catholic University of Portugal, among others.

17th June

Trade Justice and Development: Sustainable Production and Consumption

Public policies at the international level for trade and finance are essential for the effectiveness of development processes and although they encompass very diverse and complex issues, difficult to collectively analyze - from commercial practices and rules, income inequalities, development financing, to fiscal justice - this is fundamental to ensure their alignment and integral coherence with sustainable development. To understand and analyze the main challenges and (in)coherencies in the interconnection between trade justice and development.

Giuseppe Cioffo, Corporate Regulation and Extractives Officer at CIDSE Giuseppe Cioffo holds a BA in Politics and International Relations from the University of Bologna (Italy) and a Master of Science in International Development from the School of Oriental and African Studies of the University of London. Between 2012 and 2016, Giuseppe worked as a researcher, investigating and writing on agricultural and land systems in Central Africa, and particularly in Rwanda and the Democratic Republic of the Congo. Between 2017 and 2020, he joined the European Network for Central Africa (EurAc) developing the network's advocacy on the extractive industries and advocating for the European Regulation on importers of minerals from conflict affected and high-risk areas, with a focus on the rights of artisanal miners and communities impacted by mining. In 2020, Giuseppe joined CIDSE, the international family of Catholic social justice organizations, where he advocates for introducing binding rules for corporations to make them accountable for their adverse impacts on human rights and the environment.

Virginia Enssle, Junior Advocacy Officer at the Fair Trade Advocacy Office (FTAO)

Virginia Enssle is junior advocacy officer at the Fair Trade Advocacy Office (FTAO). She holds a Master's Degree in Public International Law and working experience in international trade and investment as well as Human Rights. She contributes to the FTAO's work on trade policy as to scale up Fair Trade in the trade policies.

Adrian Van Der Knaapf, Managing Director of the Farm to Market Alliance

Adrian van der Knaap is currently the Managing Director of the Farm to Market Alliance. He previously worked at the World Food Programme as Deputy Regional Director for East Africa in charge of supply chain and support services and as Head of Logistics in the Democratic Republic of Congo, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Angola and Sudan as well as Head of the Sub-Office in Gulu/Uganda and Juba/Sudan. From 2002 to 2006, he helped set-up and lead the United Nations Joint Logistics Centre in Rome (the predecessor of the Logistics Cluster) with stints in Afghanistan and Iraq. In addition to the WFP, Adrian worked for the Primary Health Care Programme of the Sudan Council of Churches in Khartoum, for Norwegian People's Aid as relief and agricultural rehabilitation project manager in South Sudan as well as Chief of UNHCR's Civil-Military Liaison Group in Zaire with Mobutu's Presidential Guard. In 2007, he was seconded by the WFP to FAO's Emergency Division. Prior to joining the humanitarian sector (in 1990), he worked in the banking sector and the selection & recruitment business. He studied Law at the University of Amsterdam.

João José Fernandes, Executive Director of Oikos

João José Fernandes graduated in Theology and Humanities (1996) and completed his Doctoral Degree in "Climate Change and Sustainable Development Policies", at the University of Lisbon, Nova University of Lisbon and Technical University of Lisbon.

He has been the Executive Director of Oikos - Cooperação e Desenvolvimento (NGDO) since October 2004. Between 1994 and 2004, he was responsible for managing the projects and programs of this non-governmental organization in countries such as Angola, Mozambique, Guinea-Bissau, East Timor, Bolivia, Peru, Cuba, Nicaragua, Honduras and El Salvador, first as Desk-Officer and later as Project Director. Between 1990 and

1994, he was a volunteer for the NGO "Leigos para o Desenvolvimento", first in Sao Tome and Principe (1990-91)

before later serving in the secretariat in Lisbon. Between 2002 and 2007, with support from the Avina Foundation, João José Fernandes was actively involved in issues related to strengthening Third Sector Organizations and promoting Corporate Social Responsibility, particularly in Portugal and Latin America.

Public Sphere and Civic Space

To understand the importance of reviving the public space, fostering a more plural environment where more actors interact, participate and regulate. In the face of a crisis in liberal democracy, civil society faces challenges related with the reduction of the civic space or, in other words, of the public space that is traditionally the democratic sphere of action of civil society: continuing limitations on freedom of expression, shrinking the civic space in countries in all regions, reinforced by Covid-19 restrictions aggravated in repressive states, etcetera. In addition, the last few years have seen both repression in the public space and revolt on a global scale, with multiple episodes of demonstrations and resistance against the current status quo, in which citizens and social movements were the prominent actors. To reflect on the role of digitalization in mobilizing and restricting the public space.

Ana Filipa Oliveira, Board Member at ACEP – the Association for Cooperation among Peoples / Mundo Crítico Ana Filipa Oliveira has worked at ACEP since 2009, where she develops projects in communication, advocacy, political influence and human rights. She is also a member of the editorial board of the Mundo Crítico magazine, which seeks to be a space for dialogue and debate on issues related with cooperation and development. With a Master's Degree in Political Science and International Relations from the Nova University of Lisbon and having graduated in Journalism from the University of Coimbra, she formerly worked at the Tribuna de Macau newspaper.

Mouna Ben Garga, Innovation Lead at CIVICUS: World Alliance for Citizen Participation Mouna Ben Garga is the Innovation Lead at CIVICUS, where she works on designing and testing new civil society formations and models for organising and collaborating in order to respond to the increasingly complex restrictions on civic spaces. She currently heads a multi-stakeholder partnership that supports the Innovation for Change network, a community-led initiative that brings together CSO, technologists, social entrepreneurs, and the private sector to defend and strengthen the civic space. Mouna also focuses on supporting CSOs, human rights defenders, and feminist movements in the MENA region. Prior to joining CIVICUS, she worked with OXFAM, designing and implementing participatory methods to increase citizen and civil society participation in public policy and local government.

Iara Pietricovsky, Co-Director at ABONG, Co-Director of INESC and President of Forus Iara Pietricovsky is a Brazilian anthropologist, an actress, a feminist and a human rights activist with a Master's Degree in Political Science. Currently, she undertakes a leadership role in the development sector as the co-director of INESC - Institute of Socioeconomic Studies, at the Brazilian NGO Association (ABONG) and is also the current President of FORUS – the International Forum of NGO Platforms.

Hibak-kalfan, Executive Director of Network for Empowered Aid Response - NEAR Hibak Kalfan is the Executive Director of the Network for Empowered Aid Response (NEAR). NEAR is a network of southern local and national NGOs that came together to reshape the global response to economic, human and environmental threats. Kalfan has more than 13 years of experience, working with several stakeholders in the Humanitarian, Media, Development and Government sectors in the Horn of Africa and Middle East. Kalfan began her career as the founder of The African Future (2007), a non-profit organization striving to improve education and healthcare in Somalia. She has since held several senior positions within Internews, World Bank Group, ACTED, Relief International, among others.

Atila Roque, Head of the Ford Foundation Office in Rio de Janeiro

Atila Roque is the Director of the Ford Foundation in Brazil.

Awarded a Master's Degree in Political Science from the Rio de Janeiro Research Institute (IUPERJ) and after graduating in History from the Federal University of Rio de Janeiro (UFRJ), he has played a leading role in different civil society organizations in Brazil and abroad. He was Executive Director of ActionAid International in the USA and INESC (Institute of Socioeconomic Studies). Before taking on the Ford Foundation in 2017, he was Executive Director of Amnesty International in Brazil. He serves on the Board of Directors of GIFE (Group of Institutes, Foundations, and Companies), a network of foundations and other private philanthropy initiatives in Brazil.

Tiago de Matos Fernandes, Lawyer and International Development Consultant

Tiago de Matos Fernandes (Lisbon, 1973) is a Lawyer and International Development Consultant. In this capacity, he has already participated in the formulation and / or execution of projects financed or implemented by several multilateral and bilateral organizations (World Bank, European Union, OECD, ECOWAS, CARICOM and Portuguese Cooperation), in more than 40 countries. He is a trainer accredited by the European Commission to provide training on contractual and financial procedures under the European Union's external action programs, an activity he has carried out regularly in Brussels (at DG DEVCO and DG NEAR) and in several ACP group countries. Between 2012 and 2017, he served firstly as a member and then later as the Chairman of the Board of TESE. More recently, he led the team responsible for drafting the "Cooperation Project Management Manual" for Camões, I.P. He holds a law degree and a postgraduate degree in European Studies from the Faculty of Law of the University of Lisbon and a Master's Degree in African Studies from ISCTE-IUL.

GULBENKIAN.PT

IN PARTNERSHIP WITH

ONGD
PLATAFORMA PORTUGUESA

cea CENTRO DE ESTUDOS SOBRE AFRICA E DESENVOLVIMENTO
REG - Universidade de Lisboa